S.C. parolee apprehended in Hancock

By ELLIS CUEVAS

A South Carolina parole violator was apprehended by Hancock County deputies after he applied for emergency aide and a department dispatcher began a check on his background, according to Hancock Sheriff Ronald Peterson.

Peterson said, "Grady William Chapman, 31, Rt. 1, Wayne Schools, S.C. appeared at the sheriff's office Wednesday night seeking emergency aide. As a normal procedure, Lillian Roberts, dispatcher, ran his name on the computer to the National Crime Information Center and as the response was coming in, he left the office and took off in his car."

"Deputy David Garcia and Auxiliary Deputy Anthony Alexis apprehended Chapman on Hwy. 607," Peterson stated.

Chapman was wanted in South Carolina for a parole violation in addition to forgery in Georgia, Peterson allowed.

Chapman voluntarily signed extradition papers to South Carolina and is being held without bond awaiting his return to that state, Peterson added.

NINE ARRESTED FOR ALCOHOL

During a 14 hour period Friday and Saturday nine persons were booked in the Hancock County jail in alcohol violations, according to Sheriff Peterson.

"It was very busy between 2:30 p.m. Friday and 4:30 a.m. Saturday, the nine arrests involved persons being charged with 'public drunk' and 'driving under the influence. It is more than the normal number of arrests for the same period," Peterson commented.

Bay native killed on Hawaiian island

Funeral services are incomplete for Donald Lusich Jr., of Bay St. Louis, who was accidentally killed on the Hawaiian island of Oahu Thursday, April 22, 1982.

The serviceman was stationed on the nuclear submarine U.S. George Washington at Pearl Harbor as an electrical technician.

A 1976 graduate of Bay Senior High, he attended Mississippi Southern University before joining the U.S. Navy.

His family received notice of his accidental death Thursday morning from the US Navy, but no with particulars.

Both his mother and father spoke to him via telephone Wednesday night, as Thursday was his 25th birthday. He served four and one-half years in the Navy and was scheduled to be discharged within a week.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Lusich Sr. of Bay St. Louis, owners and operators of Lusich's Department Store.

Other survivors include; one brother Scott, a fifth grade student at North Bay Elementary; one sister Mrs. Karen Nisbet, and one nephew. He is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Lusich, all of Bay St. Louis.

Bay seeking assistant chief and police investigator

By ELLIS CUEVAS

The Police Department of the City of Bay St. Louis is without an assistant chief and investigator according to Mayor Larry Bennett.

"Assistant Chief Jerry Grenillon this week took an indefinite leave of absence and Investigator Larry Davis resigned," Bennett said.

Grenillon, who has been with the department since October 1981, took the leave of absence for "more money" and Davis, who was hired as a patrolman in Nov. of 1981 and became assistant chief in Feb. 1981, is going into "private enterprise," Bennett said.

Bay Chief of Police Douglas Williams said, the officers leaving his department will make them short of personnel, but he was very happy with offers of assistance from the Hancock County Sheriff's Department and the Waveland Police Department.

Williams stated, "Sheriff Ronald Peterson and Waveland Investigator Robert (Poochy) Tartavouille both called me and offered any assistance we may need. I am very proud of them calling to offer help."

Bennett has already interviewed one prospective police officer and has some other prospects.

"We are making every effort to make the replacements as soon as possible, but, as you know we have to make a thorough investigation into the backgrounds of applicants," Bennett emphasized.

Mrs. Lloyd Anderson to run for judgeship

By ELLIS CUEVAS

Mrs. Meredith L. Anderson, wife of former Justice Court Judge Lloyd Anderson of Hancock County District Three, said Saturday she will be a candidate for the District Three Judgeship position.

A special election is set for June 1. Her husband was removed from that office by the Mississippi State Supreme Court earlier this month.

The Hancock County Election Commissioners met Wednesday night. Pursuant to an order received from the Hancock County Board of Supervisors on April 19, 1982 which declared the office of the District Three Justice Court vacant, the commissioners set the special election for June 1, 1982.

The election will be held on the date of the first primary election for Chancery and Circuit Court Judges.

Mrs. Anderson said, "I was going to take my petition to the Hancock County Circuit Clerk's office this morning, but my son is involved in a sporting activity today, so I will have to wait until Tuesday as the courthouse will be closed Monday."

"I had to only make four stops to secure 70 signatures of qualified electors in District Three. I know, I only needed 50 on the petition, but thought I would get a few extras," Mrs. Anderson added.

Lloyd Anderson was indicted by a January 1981 Grand Jury for embezzlement of $155 and was found not guilty by a Hancock County Circuit Court. He was removed from office on April 7, 1982 by the Mississippi State Supreme Court.

The Mississippi Judicial Performance Commission, who had investigated Anderson recommended his removal from office.

The Supreme Court ruling agreed with the commission's findings that Anderson "converted $214 in public money to his own use" and did not account for all fines imposed. The actions violated the code of conduct for judges in the state, the ruling stated.

Candidates seeking the office must have petitions signed by a least 50 qualified electors and file on or before Friday, May 21, according to Henry Otis, circuit clerk.

If no candidate receives a majority of the votes cast in the June 1 election, a run-off election will be held on Tuesday, June 15.

The Hancock precincts involved in the special election are Crane Creek, Standard, Dedaux, North Bay and Diamondhead East.

The circuit clerk's office will be open from 8 a.m. until 12 noon Saturday; May 1 for persons to register. The clerk said this is only for persons not currently registered.

A person must be registered at least 30 days prior to an election in order to vote.

Otis said he is scheduled to appear at Hancock North Central High School on Monday to give a demonstration on the voting system used by the county.

"Persons who will be age 18-years-old before Nov. 2, 1982 and are registered 30 days before the June 1 election will be able to vote. I will have some registration forms to give the students at HNC so they can fill them out and take them to my office at the courthouse for registration," Otis added.

The clerk reported he will also visit other high schools in the county to give instructions on voting system in use.

Area women threatening suit over salon closing would close, possibly as early as this weekend.

Several of the ten members who met at the home of Barbara Boston in Spanish Acres noted they only recently joined the club or extended their membership.

Diane Miller, a Waveland resident, said she paid $29 April 14, for a year's renewal.

Other members, like Aline Picone of Waveland and Boston, said they joined for a year in mid-March at a cost of $48 plus a $10 registration fee.

Picone said she had been to the club Monday and seen women signing up for memberships.

Most of the women at Boston's house were upset and felt the club had 'defrauded' them of their money.

They noted an ad promoting special membership on Sunday in both The Sea Coast Echo and the Sun Herald.

Boston and other members claimed the salon 'must have known it was going to close.'

Kelly Lyn in red, doors to close soon

By ELLIS CUEVAS

Kelly Lyn Figure Salon chain will close its Waveland branch, according to Kathryn Norton, district manager.

Ms. Norton said she was contacted late Wednesday by the chain's owner Barbara Wellman who said the Waveland branch has been 'red-flagged' for several months because it has been unable to pay its own way.

Wellman said the Choctaw Plaza facility would close, "Saturday at the soonest or at the latest next Wednesday, April 28."

At the end of March the figure salon had a membership of 2,000, Ms. Norton said.

"There are not enough ladies coming daily to justify staying open. All members have the option of transferring their memberships to either Shiloh or Biloxi. Members will receive six months free to compensate for any inconvenience. We are now setting up car pools to assist the ladies," Ms. Norton noted.

Kelly Lyn opened at the Choctaw Plaza shopping center in the spring of 1981.

Ms. Norton stated, "Information given to us about local population and expected immediate growth in the area was in error. There was not in any way a plan to come into the community, enroll members and close up. We are just another business that could not make it in a small town."

The district manager for Kelly Lyn said there was one full-time and four part-time employees at the Waveland facility.

"The full-timer is transferring to New Orleans and the part-timers may transfer to either Shiloh or Biloxi on an as-needed basis," Ms. Norton allowed.

Ms. Norton said she was trying to contact as many of the customers as possible via telephone telling them of the decision to close and offering the Shiloh or Biloxi memberships transfers.

Hancock board to review classroom expansion

By BRENT MACEY

The Hancock County School Board will meet Monday at the School District's offices in Bay St. Louis and then travel to county schools to determine where classroom expansion is most needed.

The county had planned to construct 10 classrooms at Hancock North Central, four at Gulfview Elementary School in Lakeshore, and two rest rooms and two classrooms at Charles B. Murphy school in Pearlinton.

However, loss of funds expected from the State Educational Finance Commission recently forced the board to reduce the scope of the work.

In previous meetings the board considered reducing the number of classrooms at Hancock North Central to six; reducing classrooms at Gulfview to four and eliminating both classrooms at C.B. Murphy.

Cost of that project was estimated to be between $470,000 and $500,000.

Friday in the school board offices on Court Street in Bay St. Louis, the board agreed that six classrooms will be needed at Hancock North Central.

However, members decided to visit the other schools before instructing Board Architect John Mykolyk to draw up final plans.

Board member Monvel Cuevas stated the he thought over-crowding is "is very bad" at C.B. Murphy.

He said the board may have to consider building four classrooms at that school and eliminating classroom construction at Gulfview, or consider "going two and two."

In other business, the board wrestled with a legal problem over emergency repairs conducted last week at C.B. Murphy.

School was cancelled at noon April 14, at that school because a well pump burned out and water was not available for restrooms, Sills said.

According to Woodrow Ladner, board member, the school board directed Sills have the pump repaired at a cost of $500.

However, Ladner said workman from Braden Pump and Well Service found the pump could not be repaired and a new pump had to be installed for $2,500.

Sills instructed the crew to install the pump so school could resume April 15.

According to Ladner the board could not have been contacted by Sills at that time to declare the situation an emergency.

To make the work legal, the board agreed Friday to declare the situation an emergency retroactively.

An explanation for the action was included in the minutes. A bill from Braden Pump was returned with instructions that it be submitted again showing the cost of the bill in phases.

Cuevas also read a letter addressed to the board from J.D. Penton, principal at C.B. Murphy, commending Sills for his action which allowed school to continue the next day.

Also at the meeting, the board approved the 177 day 1982-83 school calendar.

Two escapees still sought

By ELLIS CUEVAS

Two of four prisoners who escaped from the Hancock County jail early last Sunday are still at-large, according to Hancock Sheriff Ronald Peterson.

The four who escaped were Charles Edward Tague, 29; Steve Cory Sylvester, 19; Jimmy Jordan Jr., 20; and Frank Brown Jr., 23.

Sheriff's investigators and officers of the Bay St. Louis Police Department apprehended Tague and Sylvester at about 6:30 p.m. Sunday as they were walking along St. George Street in Bay St. Louis, Peterson said.

"We do not feel the two escapees are still in the area. Jordan is probably heading to Pittsburg, Pa., while Brown to the Hattiesburg area as far as we can determine at this time," Peterson added.

Jordan is a state prisoner serving 20 years for rape and was in the Hancock jail awaiting an appeal of his sentence before the Supreme Court. Brown was recently indicted by a Hancock grand jury for armed robbery and was awaiting trial.

Jordan, a white male, is six foot, six inches tall, 375 pounds, brown hair, blue eyes; Brown is a black male, five foot, nine inches, 175 pounds, black hair and brown eyes.

All four prisoners escaped together, Peterson said. Sylvester, who was a jail trusty, had a set of keys and opened the upstairs cells Saturday night where state prisoners are kept.

The prisoners apparently spent the night in a bottom cell, according to Peterson, and when the cells were opened for breakfast, walked out the hallway and escaped through the exercise yard.

Both Tague and Sylvester were charged with escape and Sylvester was charged with three counts of aiding and abetting the escapees, according to police.

Since the escape, the trusty system has been abandoned by Peterson who said, "We know we have an old and obsolete jail, but the escape was a management problem. The trusty was not supposed to have gotten a key. We had strict rules on trusties not touching the keys."

"The problems were with the jailer and dispatcher, and we have cleared them up," Peterson allowed.

"Enforcement of tighter security will mean visiting hours by family members of prisoners only on Sundays between 1-2 p.m. and persons found talking to the prisoners from the street will not be tolerated," Peterson emphasized.

The cooler weather finally arrived after tornados and several days of rain. It seemed as if it was never going to get cool, yet the weather forecasters kept saying it would.

This is the time of year a lot of folks like to get out in the yard and garden and do a little exercise they missed during the winter.

We have noted many home gardens about Bay St. Louis and Waveland as well as in the county. A lot of tomato, pepper and eggplants have been planted as well as okra, beans and corn. It is lucky to live in an area where one can grow just about any vegetable. We have noted a lot of Irish potato beds.

Bay St. Louis resident Mrs. E. J. Lacoste Jr. was at the office Thursday with a copy of the program for 'Hollywood Revue' presented under the auspices of St. Joseph's Mother's Club.

This revue was in 1936, and since we know and have known so many of the cast of characters, we thought it would be good to do a reprint.

Mrs. Lacoste was the director of the play, so see how many of the folks you know or have known. There are some who have since died, while others have moved to other areas, but many still live among us.

The Bottom Line

Candid Answers To Your Questions
About Advertising and Business Topics.

By S. GALE DENLEY
Associate Professor of Journalism

My ads seem to be looking very much alike here lately. What can I do to make them different. I'm Ready For A New Look.

Dear RFANL: Nothing, I hope, if your only reason is to relieve your feeling of a need to change.

Successful merchandisers try to make their ads recognizable so that if their name should inadvertently be left off, customers would still recognize the ad as theirs.

So don't create a problem by trying to solve a possibly non-existent one.

If your ads look like everyone else's you may have a real reason for concern.

But even so, don't make too many or too radical changes.

Some small changes that might help include:

1) Put your logo or nameplate in a different and unusual portion of the ad. You might incorporate it into the border in the upper right hand corner.

2) Use white space dramatically, or more dramatically. As a rule most ads are cluttered because the advertiser tries to put in too much information. So distinction can result from an uncluttered and "loose" appearing ad.

3) Use a distinctive but readable and legible typeface for the headline and copy for your ads.

If you feel you still have a problem you may need to get more expert help. But it sounds to me as if you really don't have a problem.

We have quoted before the line attributed to the late Lyndon Johnson: "If it's not broken, let's don't try to fix it."

So be sure you really have a problem before you set out to solve it.

Saturday is Law Day

State Bar president cites growth of liberty

A GENERATION OF PROGRESS
Liberty in America has grown almost geometrically in the last quarter century.

Despite the trauma of Vietnam, Watergate, Kent State, and the murders of President Kennedy and other prominent political and public figures, we now have more freedom under law than we did in 1957 when this nation first began to celebrate May 1 as Law Day.

The theme for Law Day XXV is "A Generation of Progress." This theme may at first seem unjustified to those who are angry over the time it takes to resolve law suits and the increasing cost of litigation.

However, part of the problem of court costs and delay arises, ironically, from a quarter century of growth in individual rights and ever increasing demands upon the justice system to protect them.

The growth of individual rights has come from three principal sources:

—Americans have exercised their constitutional right to assemble and to petition their elected representatives.

—State legislatures and Congress have responded with new laws.

—And the judiciary has expanded individual rights through interpretations of the Constitution and the laws.

It is impossible to chronicle all of this expansion in a brief space. Some of it has benefited older Americans, giving them the right to work and the right to decent medical care.

Opportunities for the handicapped have been improved so that they can participate more fully in our national life.

Some of the employment and educational barriers that faced women and minorities have been removed.

Court decisions have given those accused of crime the right to legal counsel and the right to fair treatment following arrest — basic rights too long denied in a country that symbolizes justice to developing societies throughout the world.

The courts also have extended Constitutional protection to teenagers such as the right to legal counsel — again, actions of simple fairness in a world that increasingly emphasizes the responsibilities of the young.

Because the American system is built upon individual rights and responsibilities, it is also appropriate that eighteen-year-olds have been given both the right and the responsibility to vote, to help in shaping their own future and that of the nation at the ballot box.

The Voting Rights Act has enfranchised many other Americans who were too long mute.

And, the decision in Baker v. Carr has helped to make all votes equal, removing the imbalance that permitted a handful of rural voters or gerrymandered city districts to dominate state legislatures.

As we have gained justice, we have, perhaps, lost perspective about the justice system itself. The fact is that more Americans now have access to justice and more are using it than at any time in our history.

Little wonder then that the courts have not been able to keep pace, and that too often the wheels of justice grind with agonizing slowness.

But this is a problem to be worked on — and it is being worked on by thousands of dedicated judges, lawyers and laymen. Neighborhood justice centers have been established to quickly resolve minor disputes that would fester in more lengthy formal court proceedings. Small claims courts and arbitration programs have grown, both helping to bring justice at a more affordable price.

Technology has come to the courtroom, with experiments being held in telephone conferencing and videotape depositions and computer-aided transcripts.

And, although access to justice is still far from equal, there has been improvement in delivery of legal services to the poor.

Those who work daily in the justice system have the fewest illusions about it. There is still much to be done. But the growth in liberty and individuals rights in the last 25 years is real and irrevocable.

We can all take pride as we celebrate Law Day XXV in this generation of progress.

Diet wise choose nutritious foods

Some elderly people, for various reasons, do not eat enough; their calorie and nutrient intakes become too low to maintain health.

Decreased activity, chronic illness, loss of sensitivity to taste and smell, loss of impairment of teeth, and inadequate income can all affect the eating habits of an older adult.

The nutrient requirements of elderly adults are still basically those of younger adults, according to the American Medical Association, even though fewer calories are needed.

So, older individuals should choose foods high in proteins, minerals and vitamins to make very bite count.

Many older people reduce their intakes of meat without increasing their consumption of other protein-rich foods. Calcium and iron intakes are also often too low.

Milk, cheese or yogurt should be regular features of the diet because they are excellent sources of protein and calcium.

Iron needs can be met by using lean meats, egg yolks, green leafy vegetables and whole-grain or enriched breads and cereals.

Fruit and vegetables (green and yellow) are needed each day, particularly for their vitamin C, vitamin A and fiber content.

Elderly people concerned about the cost of food will find that there are many ways to obtain items high in nutrients and low in cost. For example, canned evaporated milk and nonfat dry milk have the same protein and calcium value as that of fresh fluid milk and frequently can be substituted for fresh milk in cooking and baking.

The large packages of nonperishable items like sugar, flour, rice and beans are generally less expensive per pound than are the small packages and do not lose nutritive value during storage of several months.

Also, low-cost cuts of meat and fish are as high in nutritive value as are the more expensive items.

Thrifty buys are usually available on stew meats, pot roasts, liver, variety meats and fresh fish in season.

INVOICE SCHEMES

Attorney General Bill Allain says that more and more companies are receiving invoices in the mail indicating someone in the company has authorized the purchase of various goods or services when you actually have never heard of the company.

These routine looking invoices are often sent to you by a con artist who hopes for an automatic payment.

Allain states that Mississippi businesses are cheated out of thousands of dollars annually by swindlers who use the mails to send false bills or invoices.

While there are many variations of this scheme here are some tips to remember:

—Alert employees to watch for the receipt of invoices for unusual or unknown suppliers seeking payment.

—Keep business records to determine if merchandise or services were authorized, ordered, and delivered before they approve payment.

—If the invoice's validity remains questionable, refuse to make the payment.

—Contact the invoice's sender for verification or confirmation of the goods and services allegedly supplied the business. Watch out for evasive responses to your questions.

The successfulness of these schemes results from the firm's desire to support with the willingness and second, many firms failed to verify the existence of a bona fide obligation, especially if the amount was considered small.

Despite an increased awareness within the business community of the "hidden" employee by false billing, the success of these invoices continues to frustrate and defeat the accounting safeguards of victimized firms.

What's the law?

Parental rights and responsibilities

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article, prepared by the American Bar Association, is published in cooperation with the Mississippi Bar Association in conjunction with celebration of the 25th annual Law Day, Saturday, May 1.

Parents enjoy the traditional right to control their children and decide how they will be cared for, clothed, sheltered and educated. This right is based on the assumption that parents act in the child's best interest.

While recent laws have followed the trend to allow children more rights, at the same time they have tried to uphold parental authority and the integrity of the family unit.

Since Law Day was first celebrated on May 1, 1957, there has been a generation of progress. Rights have increased for most Americans, including children.

Here is how the law now stands concerning many rights of children and parents:

Q: What are parents' legal obligations to their minor children?
A: Parents are required to support their minor children and provide them with food, clothing, shelter, medical care and education. Fathers are held primarily responsible for this support; however, if fathers provide inadequate support, mothers are held responsible for making up the difference.

The state can bring criminal action against a father for non-support of his children. The type of support the state will require of him will depend on his financial circumstances.

Q: What does the law say about parental discipline and control?

A: A child is required to obey his parents if he or she is under their custody. This includes parental rules about child's choice of friends, dating, curfew, smoking, and other behavior. A court will support parents who ask for help in enforcing their rules. The law permits reasonable physical punishment of children by parents as part of the parental role in maintaining discipline and control. However, if real or serious injury is caused as a result of unreasonable physical punishment, this is considered child beating and is against the law.

Q: What rights do parents have to educate their children according to their religious beliefs?

A: Several State Supreme Courts have held in individual cases that the state board of education cannot compel a religious school to obey its regulations concerning coursework, texts, and teacher certification. Rather, religious schools can design their own curricula and use their own texts based on their interest in religious training.

In 1980, the Supreme Court upheld the right of parents who were members of a strict Protestant sect to educate their children at home, as they had been doing for several years, although neither of them were certified teachers. The parents made religious training an important part of their children's education, training that was not available in the local school system.

Q: What right do parents have to restrict their children's religious affiliation?

A: This question has been under debate by several state legislatures. Some legislatures are considering the passage of laws that would allow the courts to name temporary guardians for people who have been recruited by religious cults, whether they be minors or adults. Other state legislatures have rejected such bills on the grounds that they infringe on a person's First Amendment right to freedom of religion.

Because of the constitutional issue involved, courts rather than legislatures may provide the answer to this question on an individual basis. In 1980, a federal court awarded a father $30,000 in damages when he brought a lawsuit against the Unification Church contending that the church had "deprived him of his natural parental right" by recruiting his daughter when she was a minor.

Q: Are parents responsible for a traffic accident that their child causes?

A: In most cases, yes. When a minor applies for a driving license, a person who has reached the age of majority, usually the parent, must act as his sponsor. That sponsor is responsible for any automobile accidents that the minor is involved in until the minor reaches the age of 18. In some states, in addition to this responsibility, the sponsor can have the minor's license cancelled, with notice given to the State Motor Vehicle Department.

Q: Do parents hold any liability for contracts made by their minor children?

A: Parents only hold liability for their children's contracts if they have co-signed a contract, for example, an apartment lease or a credit purchase. In most cases, it is a merchant's or landlord's decision whether to accept a contract from a minor without a parent's co-signature.

Q: Are parents responsible for damages caused by their minor children?

A: Parents are responsible for torts committed by their minor children. This liability varies from state to state. For example, they may be held responsible for damages caused by vandalism or mischief, destruction of school property, and destruction of private property. This liability may entail financial responsibility to a certain dollar amount, for example, $5,000.

Q: May a physician perform an abortion on a minor or treat a minor for pregnancy without the consent of the minor's parents?

A: Laws concerning the medical care of minors vary widely from state to state. Six states (Louisiana, Maine, Maryland, Montana, Nevada, Utah) require doctors to inform parents before they perform an abortion on a minor child. The Utah law recently was upheld by a Supreme Court decision in March, 1981 when the Court held that it did not violate a 15-year-old girl's right to privacy but rather furthered legitimate state interests that favored the family and were more important than the girl's privacy.

Virtually every state allows a minor to receive treatment for VD without parental knowledge and 34 states have laws that specifically protect doctors by saying they need not inform parents about VD care.

Thirty-five states likewise have laws that do not require doctors to inform parents about pregnancy care.

Q: Can a parent refuse lifesaving medical care for a minor child?

A: Parents do not have a right to refuse medical treatment for their minor child if the treatment is nonexperimental and appropriate, if denial of the treatment would result in death, and if the anticipated outcome of the treatment promises the child a chance for normal, healthy growth. If the parents refuse to authorize treatment, this is grounds for state intervention on behalf of the child. The state presents a legal argument that the parents have failed to provide the child with the "necessities of life," one of which is medical care.

Q: Are parents allowed to commit their minor children to state mental institutions?

A: Laws in 36 states allow parents to commit their minor children to state mental institutions. Such laws were upheld in a 1979 Supreme Court decision that rejected the argument that these laws did not assure that the parents were acting in the child's best interest. However, the decision did note that the hospital's medical staff must independently conclude that treatment is needed before admitting the child.

Q: Under what circumstances can parental rights be terminated?

A: The laws differ from state to state. In general, a court may order a child taken away from his parents and turned over to a social welfare agency if this is considered to be in the best interest of the child.

Such action typically takes place if the court determines that a child under 18 years of age has been "permanently neglected" by his parents; that restrictive parenting practices have inhibited normal development; or, that parents are incapable of planning for the future of the child, that is, providing parental care and an adequate, stable home commensurate with their financial condition.

Several states have struck down the concept of "in the best interest of the child" as too vague. Instead, they have spelled out the circumstances that are the basis for the termination of parental rights, for example, when parents abandon the child, are disabled by alcohol or drug use, or are mentally ill.

Q: What are some of the legal questions that arise in a case of terminating parental rights?
A: Several difficult legal questions are posed by this type of case that involve the balancing of fundamental and often conflicting rights. These are the rights of parents and their children to be free from unreasonable governmental interference in their family life, the right of natural parents to have the care and custody of their children, the right of children not to be neglected by their parents, and the right of the state to protect children who are not properly being cared for by their parents.

EDUCATION OUTLOOK

By Billy D. Sills, Hancock County School District superintendent

The fundamental principal of land grants to support public education was brought to the North American Continent by the early English settlers who reserved land for the support of settlement schools.

The controversy surrounding this school-owned property almost seems to go back that far also.

In the history of Mississippi, 16th Section land has been leased for 50 to 100 years at anywhere from 10 cents to a dollar per acre. The revenue from those lengthy cheap leases was hardly worth the paperwork.

The Mississippi Legislature saw fit in 1978 to hand the managerial responsibilities of the land to the school boards, the group which has the most interest in the land.

With the land, the school board inherited all the problems that go with the land, including setting lease prices.

If one were to compare the 1982 lease price per acre per year to the old $1 per acre lease, the increase would seem tremendous. But to get a proper perspective on the entire situation, one must compare present 16th Section lease prices to the 1982 land prices.

The board of education has to be realistic in setting "rental prices." For example, if a school board has a 100-acre tract to lease, which means when the lease comes up for renewal the school board must choose to lease the land to the school board or to the public. The board of education has made the management of the land a difficult decision, and to manage the 16th Section land would be to endanger the educational future.

Our state is fortunate to have a board of education that is willing to take the time to study the land and to make the best use of it.

measures that will produce more revenue for the schools, the quality of education will not improve. The federal government is gradually phasing out a lot of the federal funds allotted to schools, so the local system will have to pick up the tab.

A popular contention is most of the people on the 16th Section Lands are poor and cannot afford higher leases.

No one, so far, has turned renewal down or moved because of the lease prices, according to the school boards records. The school board is not a welfare agency, nor is it turning its back on the leaseholders.

The idea which must remain upmost in the minds is the fact that they are the sole managers and must operate on a business-like manner. That's tough in a small town atmosphere - I know from experience.

Laws are funny. Everyone interprets them differently. For example, many other counties charge more for the 16th Section leases, while others charge less.

Priorities have to be revamped, and I don't think there's any question about the children being in the number one slot.

VFW emblem symbolism explained

By LUCILLE BOUDREAUX
President, Theodore S. Price
Auxiliary No. 3253

The Cross of Malta, the emblem of the Veterans of Foreign Wars is 1,000 years old.

For more than one million

ex-soldiers, sailors, Marines and Coast Guardsmen, who are the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the Cross of Malta is used today for the symbol of their battles in time of war and of their campaign to defend the rights of human beings in time of peace.

It symbolizes the compassion, and sympathy of those men for the needy. It is the sign of services, which our contemporary veterans render to help make living better for everyone.

This cross has a religious origin. Its eight points represent the eight "Beautitudes" prescribed in the Sermon on the Mount. Under this cross, the sick, needy and the poor are administered unto. The ideals found in the origin of this cross are the principles of our democracy today, freedom and justice.

Centuries passed to the year of 1899 and men banded together pledging themselves for the rights of mankind, which was the birth of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States of America.

Why did the VFW choose this cross as their emblem?

Upon the cross is superimposed the great seal of the United States of America encircled by the name "Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States." Within the circle is the American eagle, the emblem of this proud nation where men have fought and died to preserve the free man's way of living.

Between the four arms of the cross the Veterans of Foreign Wars has added sunrises, to emphasize the vigor and warmth with which today these great men defend our ideals with their character.

They pledge allegiance, as members, to the government of the United States and fidelity to its laws, to foster true patriotism, extend American freedom and defend this nation from all enemies.

Anyone who is eligible should be proud and consider it a great honor to belong to such a great organization.

The award is presented to those scientists and engineers who are distinguished members of the Society, who are leaders in the field of photogrammetry and who are internationally recognized for their work.

Pearlington children stage Easter egg hunt

Children in the Primary Association of the Pearlington Branch of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints hunted Easter eggs on the grounds of the church and the Pearlington Community Center Friday, April 9.

Members of the branch and their friends attending the event included William and Paulette Gilthorpe and sons, Will and Jared; Lillie Tzuanos, daughter Tammy Wilson and son, Joshua; and step-mother, Jenny Giveans; Patty Baldree and children, Jimmy, Leanne and Angela; Bettina and Deanna Deaver; Pam, Tina and Nickole Perle and their cousin Bubba Salisbury.

In addition to the egg hunt, the children played games and sang songs, followed by a Weiner and marshmallow roast.

The Primary Association is an auxiliary organization for the children of the Mormon Church between the ages of 3 and 11 years.

The association was organized for the express purpose of assisting parents in their efforts and responsibility to teach their children the Gospel of Jesus Christ and their place in the eternal family unit, according to Patty Baldree, branch public communications director.

The association meets on Sunday mornings from 10 a.m. to noon. All children of the area are invited to attend.

Retzer resigns post

Citing personal reasons and saying it was time for new ideas and leadership, Mike Retzer has announced his resignation as chairman of the Mississippi Republican Party.

"My family is young and growing, and I would like to spend more time with them," Retzer said. "The Party is also young and growing, and I feel it needs fresh ideas and new leadership."

"There are plenty of Mississippi Republicans who are capable of being good state chairman," Retzer added. "I have no doubts. I'm leaving the party in good hands." The State Republican Central Committee is to meet later this month to choose Retzer's successor.

"For personal reasons as well as for the good of the party, I felt the time was right to step down after four years as chairman," Retzer said.

YOU AND YOUR PET

An unfortunate reality for dogs and dog owners who live in Mississippi and the Southeast is heartworms.

The heartworm, known in scientific terminology as Dirofilaria immitis, is a cardiovascular parasite that affects a large percentage of dogs in the South.

Dr. Ross "Skip" Shelton, a wildlife specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service, says up to 85 percent of the dogs in some areas may be infected with heartworms.

"Despite the fact that most dog owners think they know the symptoms of heartworms in their pets, they are very difficult to detect without a blood test," he says.

"There are symptoms commonly associated with the parasite such as coughing, rough hair or coat, loss of weight, anemia, convulsions and dermatitis."

He said these symptoms may indicate the presence of heartworms, and dogs that have these traits should be checked thoroughly.

"The important point is that your dog can have a serious heartworm condition without showing any of these signs," Shelton says.

The wildlife specialist says the cardiovascular parasite enters the bloodstream in larvae form when the animal is bitten by an infected mosquito.

"In less than a year, they work their way to the heart as mature worms, and cause rapid aging and painful death," he says.

Shelton says dog owners with animals infected with heartworms have the option of three treatments:

—Injection of caparsolate Sodium, administered by a veterinarian.

"Even if the worms are killed, there usually is some damage to the animal," he said. "The worms that are killed and dissolved must go through the lungs and can cause blockage and lesions."

—Preventive treatment with Diethylcarbamazine tablets.

Shelton says tablets are available from a local veterinarian and should be given every two months. He said the program is only 80 percent effective.

—Daily liquid doses of worm medicine.

Shelton says this medication, available from a veterinarian, is the only treatment that can be 100 percent effective.

"Pet and hunting dog owners should have a veterinarian check dogs at least once a year and practice preventive control," Shelton says. "This will help dogs live longer."

Craftsman opens Bay stained glass business

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

A stained glass craftsman who is a London, England native is attempting to establish a business in Bay St. Louis. Christopher J. Tuck, 27, recently moved here at the urging of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Brown, owners and operators of Antique Arcade on Second Street.

His skill is evident in a variety of stained glass panels displayed at the arcade which range from traditional Victorian designs to colorful contemporary works.

Tuck says he is particularly interested in custom designing panels for residential and commercial structures. He also restores weakened or broken antique stained glass.

The Englander's career began in 1974 in Montreal, Canada where he began working in the production line of a government-operated stained glass factory and training facility.

Stained glass work was not his initial interest. Tuck explains he originally intended studying production engineering in college, but there were no openings in the early 1970's at Canadian universities teaching that profession.

Tuck was later promoted to a supervisory position at the factory, but a disinterest in the everyday 'hiring and firing' aspect of that occupation did not challenge the young man's creativity.

So, in 1977 he moved to New Orleans to open a stained glass business.

While in New Orleans, Tuck designed and built all the tiffany lamps, and stained glass windows and signs for the growing Frenchy's sandwich shop chain.

Among many works for homes and businesses, he also crafted stained glass panels for the Bull's Corner Cafe in Fat City in Metairie.

His panels were also featured at the New Orleans Jazz and Heritage Festival for the three years he operated the enterprise.

With the pressures of operating his own business becoming creatively stifling, Tuck then decided to journey to west Texas to work at a cattle and sheep ranch. There he occasionally accepted stained glass commissions.

Tuck encourages anyone to stop by his shop at the arcade to watch or ask questions about the uncommon craft.

He says ideas for panels are generated either by a design a customer may have in mind or Tuck will suggest a pattern or style based on a color scheme in a home or business.

"Customers either have a definite idea of what they want or we refer to books I have on hand to choose a design," Tuck states.

Tuck reports that Victorian glass designs accented with beveled glass are popular in today's home construction.

He also notes stained glass is not only attractive, but stronger than a standard window pane of comparable size.

The craftsman says his production line experience helped develop speed in his trade. Tuck notes he can usually complete an average job in about one week.

Tuck prices panels based on intricacy of design and square footage.

Although he prefers to fashion window-size works, Tuck notes he once constructed a 13-foot stained glass design consisting of several sections.

Brothers of Sacred Heart jubilarians mark service

Six Brothers of the Sacred Heart with an accumulation of 250 years of service were honored recently in chapel ceremonies at St. Stanislaus High School in Bay St. Louis.

The Golden Jubilarians are Brothers Alcuin Kelly, Donald McGrath, Lloyd LeBlanc, and Okianoma. His other assignments have taken him to Alabama, Mississippi, and Louisiana, where he taught for 24 years, 19 of which were in New Orleans, where his time was about evenly divided between St. Aloysius and Brother Martin High School.

It was as a member of the Martin faculty as a typing teacher that he suffered a heart attack this year, ending his teaching career. Presently, Brother Lloyd is in New Orleans, convalescing.

In the course of his long career, he was called upon to serve as director and as provincial secretary (1959-64).

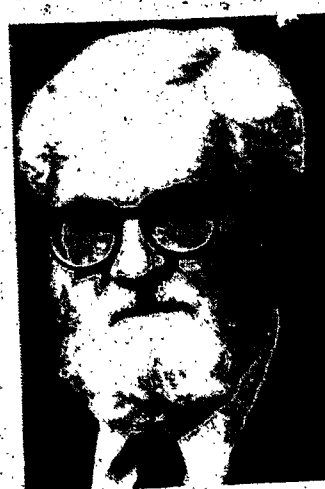

A native of Vicksburg, Brother Nicholas has been handed such different assignments as novice master, director, assistant principal, teacher, and parents' club moderator (for 17 years at Cor Jesu High School and Brother Martin High School in New Orleans).

He began his teaching career at Metuchen where he was stationed for seven years. In addition to three years in New York and seven in Baton Rouge, he taught 30 years in Aloysius in New Orleans in 1966. Math has been his chief subject.

Brother Neal has been a member of the Brother Martin High School faculty since the school began in 1969.

He was named director of one of the residences of the

BROTHER ALCUIN

Nicholas Geisenberg. Honored as Silver Jubilarians are Brothers Eduardo Baldicoda and Neal Golden.

All took first vows in Metuchen, N.J., and all except Brother Alcuin pronounced final vows in Bay St. Louis.

Alcuin made his final commitment in Huntington, N.Y.

Born in Juniata, Pennsylvania, Brother Alcuin joined the Brothers of the Sacred Heart in Metuchen in 1932. His first teaching assignment was at St. Willibrod High School in Verdun, P.Q., Canada, where he remained for 11 years. Next followed assignments in New Orleans (on two different occasions); a year in Alexandria, La., and four at Baton Rouge, La., before his assignment in Mobile, Alabama, in 1955 where, until his retirement a year ago, he was a teacher of art and mechanical drawing.

Brother Alcuin, who is still stationed in Mobile, makes novel clocks, one of which has been patented.

BROTHER EDUARDO

New Orleans before ending his teaching career in 1981.

Math was his specialty. In 1957 Brother Nicholas studied in Rome for a year. He is still at Martin High School working as an assistant in the finance office.

Brother Eduardo Baldicoda, another native New Orleansian, and a short-wave radio operator, is the only jubilarian to have joined the Brothers at Daphne, Ala. (1957).

He is a teacher and prefect at St. Stanislaus High School. His first teaching assignment, St. Aloysius High School in New Orleans, came in 1962.

Next, he came to Bay St. Louis for four years where he first assumed prefecting duties at the boarding school here.

He returned to St. Aloysius for another tour of duty before being assigned to St. Stanislaus in 1968 where he has remained ever since.

In 1977, Brother Eduardo

NORDA studying unique currents

A team of ocean researchers from the Naval Ocean Research and Development Activity at NSTL in Hancock County, with assistance from France and Spain, is studying a large circulation feature in the waters of the Alboran Sea, the westernmost part of the Mediterranean Sea.

This feature, a clockwise circular flow of water called a gyre, has a diameter of 100 km

(or 60 miles). Formed by the water current flowing through the Strait of Gibraltar from the Atlantic Ocean, the gyre is nestled between the coasts of Spain and Morocco.

The purpose of the study is to learn more about the ways oceanic flows behave near straits in general, as well as to learn about the strategically important Strait of Gibraltar region, in particular.

The project is being funded by the Office of Naval Research. The team is headed by NORDA principal investigators Drs. Thomas Kinder and Harley Hurlburt, Paul LaViolette, and, representing ONR, Dr. Dennis Conlon.

A computer-generated numerical model of the flow dynamics of the gyre is presently being fabricated by Dr. Hurlburt and Ms. Ruth Preller of the JAYCOR Corporation.

It will serve as the basis for the design of a cooperative field experiment, scheduled for this summer.

Satellite imagery of the area, beginning with data acquired from the October 1981 Space Shuttle Flight and continuing into this year, is being analyzed. The analysis of these images, supplied by the French Space Agency at Lannion, also contributes to the planning for the field work. USNS Bartlett will be placing five current meter moorings near the Strait of Gibraltar in June. In October, the Bartlett, under the command of the U.S. Naval Oceanographic Office, will return to the area and take temperature and salinity profile readings from the meters, in cooperation with ships of the Spanish Institute of Oceanography and the Hydrographic Service of the Spanish Navy.

NORDA's Drs. Henry Perkins and Kim Saunders will be aboard USNS Bartlett acquiring data from a unique velocity profiler they developed; and Ron Holyer and Bob Arnone, also of NORDA, will be making water column measurements.

Additional support for the project will come from personnel of the U.S. Navy Environmental Prediction Research Facility, who will be making meteorological measurements; from the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration's Wave Propagation Laboratory at Boulder, Colorado, who will operate their shore-based, current measuring radar; and from the Spanish Institute of Oceanography, who will be making biological measurements in the waters of the area.

After the data acquired are compiled and analyzed, the investigators hope to improve their model, and to better relate remote sensing images to the flow of the gyre. Increased understanding of the gyre formation and behavior should lead to better forecasting and monitoring of oceanic conditions near Gibraltar, and to general improvements in experiments and surveys in the waters near straits.

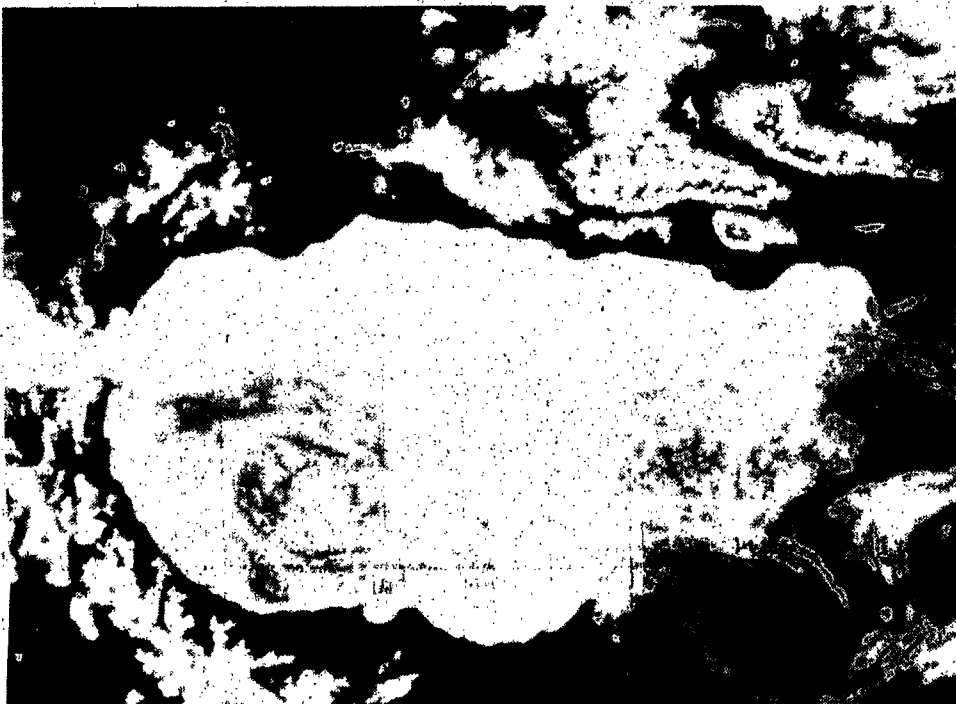

Story Hour lists titles

A story hour program is conducted for pre-schoolers every Thursday at 10:30 a.m. at the Bay St. Louis Library. Programs are designed for four to six-year-olds and those three-year-olds accustomed to group settings.

This week's program begins with Frederick by Leo Lionni. Arms are swinging, a physical activity, will be taught to the children between stories.

Which is the Best Place by Mira Ginsburg will be the second story told. The program will conclude with the motion picture film 'Strega Nonna,' according to Becky Mitchum, children's librarian.

Americans eat more apples than all the rest of the world combined.

MEDITERRANEAN GYRE—This satellite infrared image shows contrasting warm (dark) and cool (light) water flowing through the Strait of Gibraltar from the Atlantic Ocean, left, into the Alboran Sea. The large clockwise gyre has a core of warmer water. The upper part of the picture reveals a portion of the coast of Spain; and in the lower part, a portion of Morocco. (NORDA photo)
